SCHUBACH WITH WHONG-FULLY SIGNING A PASS.

Max Schubach, member of the firm of Claude & Schubach, ticket brokers of 102 North Broadway, was arreated yesterday afternoon on an information issued by Assistant Circuit Attorney Hencock charging him with forgery. He was taken to the Four Courts by deputy sheriffs, where he gave bond for $1000 before Judge Jesse McDonald.

The prosecuting witness against Schubach is David Hirshberg, of Louisville, Ky. He alleges that Schubach forged the name of the agent of the Louisville and Henderson railroad to a pass which Schubach sold him. The transaction took 17 nee last December, and Hirshberg chaims that when he attempted to ride on the pass he was put off the train at Cloverport, Ky.

He brought suit in the Louisville court for $5,000 damages, but lost his case. Afterward Hirshberg secured the services of Attorney W. T. Burch, of Louisville, who came to $1. Louis and laid the facts before Mr. Hancock. Schubach at first refused to accompany the deputy sheriffs and compelled them to produce their authority for arresting him. This caused a delay of several hours. Schubach lives at $221A Lafayette Apenue.

A colneidence in the case is the fact that Herman Schubach, brother of the accused, was yesterday sentenced to ten days in the city jail on a charge of contempt of court growing out of an injunction issued by the circuit court a few days ago. As Max Behubach was being led into the Four Courts by deputy sheriffs after his arrest Herman Schubach was leaving the city jail in charge of deputy sheriffs. Another victory went down to the Brownles yesterday afternoon, and after a desperate effort on the part of Richmond the latter team bit the dust to the tune of 3 to 1.

The game was great, but the woggle buy was in evidence, and as a result the Brownles won out.

Strange to say, the crowd roots against the strong team from Fulton, with Hicks as captain and Dalley as manager.

The Brownles have shown themselves to be the fastest team Richmond ever had, not excluding the State and Atlantu-League teams.

be the fastest team Richmond ever had, not excluding the State and Allanuc League teams.

Richmond put up good ball, too, and here is how it happened: For three innings there was nothing. Then Hicks got a pass to first base. Anthony followed with a hit, Hicks stole third, and scored on McLeay's out. Another inning passed without incident. Then in the sixth Hicks got another pass. Successive hits by Anthony and Knowles scored him. In the seventh McEvoy beat out a slow hit to Edwards. Edwards threw wild, and the runner went to scoond. He stole third and scored on Jimmie McEvoy's wild throw to head Hicks. Captain Hicks figured in two runs, and the woggle bird helped him to score McEvoy. But that was all, and the Bender boys played great ball to win, but the bird wouldn't let them.

Not until the seventh was a run make by the bunch. Jim McEvoy hit in deep center for two bags. If the grass had been cut it would have been for three. John McEvoy rered and Jimmie went to third. Then he scored on his brother Willie's out.

Crawford pitched a great game. He held the Brownles down to six hits, but Winston with lime tout hit give

The Value of Hope.

The Value of Hope.

We talk about the care free days of childhood.

Why do we remember these days with such delight? Was it because we had nothing to do but to play? No Many of us had errands and chores that kept us hisy from morning until night. It was not idleness that gave us happiness.

What, then, is the secret of the happiness of childhood?

The question is answered in one word, Hope.

As children we hoped for sometaing new, something better to-morrow than the good that came to-day. Or if to-day chanced to have more of tears than of smiles we hoped for a brighter to-morrow.

As children we believe in people and

As children we believe in people and in the world; we trust that to-morrow will bring right the trials of to-day. Hope smooths out the wrinkles of to-lay and prepares for a beautiful to-morrow.

field Jackson gave his old friend, "Quartermaster Banks," a very sound thrashing, drove him at least three miles, held the whole of the battisfield, and forced Banks the next day to bury his dead under a flag of truce.

Jackson was making preparations to flank Banks and move on Culpeper when he received reliable information from his secuts that Pope's whole army had come up to support Banks, and he, therefore, on the third day, recrossed the Rapidan and rested until General Lee came up, when Pope was hustled across the Rapipahannock and "Headquarters in the Sadde" so signally dismounted on the field of Second Manassas

I have a number of very interesting incidents concerning the battle of Codar Run, which I may send you at some future time, but I only wanted now to correct the idea that Jackson's brilliant victory on that occasion was a drawn battle.

It is the waterway from Peterslurg to the mouth of Old Town creek, two miles below the city, that is to be dug out to carry the freshet water from a point above Petersburg to the former channel. The United States engineer has authority to designate the point at which work shall begin, and it is very likely that this point will be at the mouth of Old Town creek. The jeontractors are anxious to begin the work so that, since everything is in readinesss, it will not be much longer delayed.
